Why Integrating Primary and Behavioral Health Care is Getting National Attention

Laura Galbreath, MPP
Director, SAMHSA–HRSA Center for Integrated Health Solutions,
National Council for Behavioral Health

Integrated primary and behavioral health care is becoming the new norm. It is also improving the health and wellness of people with mental health and substance use disorders, including older adults with these conditions. Learn how specialty behavioral health settings and the SAMHSA-HRSA Center for Integrated Health Solutions are tackling implementation challenges and creating innovative solutions to reshape the way people access health care services. This session will provide replicable examples of what works for providers as they move toward integration - building upon the latest developments in care models, financing, policy and workforce development.

Integrated Care in Pima County Panel Discussion

Regional providers will discuss the models of integrated health care used in their agencies, how it is improving the care provided, and the challenges of implementing integrated care.

Panel members from: Assurance Health and Wellness Center, CODAC, La Frontera and Cenpatico Integrated Care.

Integrated Health Care for an Aging Population

Lesley Manson, Psy.D.
Clinical Assistant Professor,
Assistant Chair of Integrated Initiatives,
Doctor of Behavioral Health Program
Arizona State University

Integrated health care is an essential framework for healthy aging and functional ability. Health care professionals must lead the transformation of health systems toward the provision of person centered integrated care. This presentation will provide an overview of the benefits and challenges related to building an integrated model of care. Essential and pragmatic basics for rapid implementation of integrated care management for practitioners and managers will be discussed. Foundational review of early identification, brief assessment, evidence-based interventions, team-based care activities, care management, and resource allocation for integrated care approaches to serving aging populations will be discussed.

Integrated Care: Case Examples from Long-Term Care

Christopher Wiegand, M.D.
ALEPH Center,
Northwest Medical Center,
TMC Geropsych Unit,
Clinical Assistant Professor,
Department of Psychiatry,
University of Arizona

Real world clinical examples of how integrated care is providing benefits and how the lack of integrated care is causing problems.
